

Matthew DeHaven

125 Pleasant St., Providence, RI 02906

+1 919-548-7939 matthew_dehaven@brown.edu matthewdehaven.com

Education

Brown University

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY, ECONOMICS

2021 - Present

Furman University

BACHELOR OF SCIENCE, MATHEMATICS-ECONOMICS AND POLITICAL SCIENCE

2014 - 2018

Work Experience

Federal Reserve Board of Governors

Washington, DC

RESEARCH ASSISTANT

2018 - 2021

Worked in the International Finance Division studying International Financial Stability and assisting the division director. Daily work contained a mix of policy and research projects. Built experience coding in R and Python.

Teaching

Brown University

Providence, RI

TEACHING FELLOW

2024 - 2026

- Applied Economics Analysis

Developed course and delivered all lectures. Class focused on programming, version control, and creating reproducible research

Brown University

Providence, RI

TEACHING ASSISTANT

2022 - 2023

- Intermediate Macroeconomics
- Macroeconomics (first year PhD course)

Presentations, Workshops, and Fellowships

Federal Reserve Board of Governors Dissertation Fellowship (Summer 2026), Furman University Visiting Scholar (October 30-31, 2025), Stanford Big-Data Initiative in International Macro-Finance (August 2025), Southern Economic Association (November 23-25, 2024)

Research

WORKING PAPERS

Adrian, Tobias, Matthew DeHaven, Fernando Duarte, and Tara Iyer. 2023. “The Market Price of Risk and Macro-Financial Dynamics.” IMF Working Papers 2023 (199).

WORK IN PROGRESS

Adrian, Tobias, Matthew DeHaven, and Fernando Duarte. “The Price of Risk Drives the Business Cycle.”

DeHaven, Matthew. “Domestic Uncertainty Shocks in a New Keynesian Open Economy.”

PUBLISHED PAPERS

Chen, Mary, Matthew DeHaven, Isabel Kitschelt, Seung Jung Lee, and Martin J. Sicilian. 2023. “Identifying Financial Crises Using Machine Learning on Textual Data.” Journal of Risk and Financial Management 16 (3): 161.